Record enrollment tops in state

The numbers are in and Corpus Christi State University is on top.

CCSU enrolled a record 15.45 percent more students this fall semester than one year ago, earning the University the distinction of the greatest percentage increase of any public university in the State of Texas according to numbers released recently by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board.

A total of 4,423 students had enrolled and remained in classes by the 12th class day this fall. Last fall, 3,831 students were in classes at the census date deadline. The percentage of increase, 15.45, was the highest recorded by any Texas public university. The percentage increase represents 592 students.

In addition to more students this fall at CCSU, more students are enrolled in more semester credit hours than ever before on the campus. Semester credit hours, or the number of credits received for course work, is up 12.4 percent over the same period last year.

Growth in enrollment appeared to be a South Texas story, according to the THECB. Eight of the top nine institutions claiming percentage increase growth were South Texas institutions. CCSU was at the Student Government election results:

Registered, write-in candidates fill most Senate seats

A total of 220 students voted in the Student Government elections held October 20-22. All colleges except Education filled their available regular and alternate Senate seats.

The College of Arts and Humanities elected Barbara Greenwood and a write-in candidate, Rick Olmos, to fill their two senate seats. Quinn Chandler and Evelyn Van Winkle were elected as alternates. Two other candidates received write-in votes.

The College of Business Administration elected Jennifer Ruiz as first alternate and write-in candidate Cathy Bauman as second alternate, filling both available spots. Five other candidates received write-in votes in that election.

The College of Education filled five of its six regular senate seats by electing the one registered candidate, James A. Friesenhahn, and four write-in candidates, Joann Alaniz, Lisa Lester, Martha Ramirez and Elizabeth Pirtle. Education still lacks one senator and two alternates.

College of Science and Technology students Lee Ellis, Stephanie A. Dotson and Fred R. Ryman won the Senate seats for their College. Dale Dean won the first alternate position with eight write-in votes. Four other write-in candidates tied for the second alternate seat with one vote apiece. Student Government President Chris Munson said that the alternates would be elected by the Student Government at their next meeting, Nov. 5, at 12:30 p.m.

In addition to casting their votes for their Colleges' Student Government Senators, 179 students also responded to a ballot question on parking sticker recommendations. One hundred and thirteen people favored a tag which would hang from a vehicle's rear-view mirror, and 40 people favored retaining the old parking sticker affixed to the

CCSU Student Services

Grievance procedures address student complaints

EDITOR'S NOTE: In an effort to better communicate services provided to students enrolled at CCSU, the University News has prepared a three-part series that highlights some of the services available. Today's story is dedicated to grievance procedures. Subsequent stories will focus on the various labs available such as the math and writing labs as well as the Personal Skills Center. Services of the Career Planning & Placement Center will also be featured in the series. by Timothy Schmelzer

It would be unrealistic to think you could please all the people all the time. At some time during your course of studies at CCSU, you may find something with which you disagree. You may have a complaint. A complaint about the way you have been treated, either academically or personally.

CCSU offers three separate procedures for addressing grievances brought by students; the course of action depends upon the nature of the complaint. Academic appeals, disciplinary grievances and sexual harassment complaints all follow

A citizen's duty. According to the Survey of Voter Intentions in Nueces County, this voter has a 41% likelihood of casting his ballot for Bill Clinton, the Democratic candidate. See story on page 4. Mobile early voting drew 2722 voters in Nueces County, including those voting on campus October 26 and 27.

distinct procedures. This article will outline these procedures for students, enabling them to pursue the proper course of action.

University policy states that "a student who believes that he or she has not been held to realistic academic standards, just evaluation procedures, or appropriate grading, may appeal the final grade given in the course." To do that, first, the student should appeal the grade to the instructor of the course. If an agreement is reached, the matter stops at that level. However, if the student does not feel that the matter has been satisfactorily resolved, he or she may submit the appeal to the Dean of the College in which the course is taught. The Dean will review the appeal and mediate a decision. If satisfaction still is not reached, the student may request the Provost to refer the appeal to the University Faculty Senate Grievance Committee. This committee, which consists of eight tenured faculty members, is an ad hoc committee of the Faculty Senate. In other words, it convenes only when a grievance requires action by the committee. The committee will hear the case and present its findings and recommendations in writing to the student, the faculty member and the President.

Campus United Way campaign begins

The campaign theme says it all: "Local Dollars Helping Local People." The United Way of the Coastal Bend last year helped more than 200,000 of our neighbors and friends by funding 55 local health and human services agencies.

For more than 15 years, Corpus Christi State University has been an active supporter of the United Way campaign, and this year, once again, a drive to let local people help local agencies is underway.

A goal of $4,500 has been set to top last year's gift of $4,131. Pledge cards, with a request for a generous donation, will soon see "United Way." page 4.

cluding at 2:30 p.m. on Friday, November 20.

Early registration continues November 23-24 and Nov. 30 in the Registrar's Office during regular business hours (MW 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Tu 8 a.m.-7 p.m.) Note: CCSU will be closed for the Thanksgiving holidays on November 26 and 27.

To early register, current students simply pick up their class scheduling form (CSF) in the Registrar's Office on or after November 12, seek advisement if desired and register on or after their assigned registration time. Each student's registration appointment is listed on the CSF. Appointment times are based on the number of accumulated CCSU hours; therefore, the closer a student is to graduation, the earlier their registration appointment.

New students can also early register. If you are a new student, simply stop by the Admissions Office in the Administration Building, and See "Early Registration," page 4.

Early Registration begins November 16

The race for Spring 1993 class schedules is about to begin as CCSU students start queuing up for early registration. Starting line: Monday, November 16. Participation in early registration means reserving classes before January's regular registration.

Priority early registration will be held November 16-20 in the Faculty Center Conference Room A (Room 101) starting at 9 a.m. daily, continuing to 6:30 p.m. on Monday through Thursday and con-

Candidates for December '92 commencement

The following listing was compiled from students who submitted their application for December 1992 graduation, and will be used to order diplomas. If you wish to make any changes in the spelling or presentation of your name, please contact the Office of the Registrar as soon as possible. Students who plan to graduate in December and whose names are not included in this list will need to visit the Registrar's Office or before the last day of classes, December 11. The office is located in the Administration building in the center of campus.

University Cinema to feature Dr. Strangelove, Monty Python

The University Cinema series continues with comedy classics free and open to the public each Wednesday with screenings at 7:30 p.m. in Warren Theatre. Upcoming films include:

Nov. 4: Dr. Strangelove (Shown in CS 101)

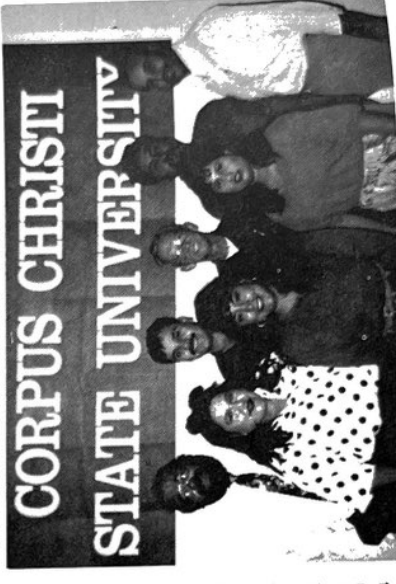

Newsweek Magazine called it "Side-splitting funny! ... An eloquent testimony to the possibilities of intelligent comment in film." Saturday Review called it "outrageous, daring, inventive, devilish, macabre and scintillating..." Directed by Stanley Kubrick and starring Peter Sellers and George C. Scott, Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned To Stop Worrying And Love the Bomb is a wildly comic nightmare that sees the President of the U.S.S.R. cooperating in a bizarre effort to save the world from total disaster. (1964, 93 min.)

Nov. 11: Monty Python and the Holy Grail

It's Monty Python meets King Arthur in one of the zaniest movies ever! Directed by Terry Gilliam and Terry Jones, Monty Python and the Holy Grail stars Graham Chapman, John Cleese, Eric Idle and Michael Palin. "It's a dazzling blitzkrieg of some of the most excruciatingly funny visual gags." -- Joseph Gelmis, Newsday. "Recklessly funny and sometimes a matter of comic genius, a triumph of errancy and muddle." -- Penelope Gilliat, The New Yorker. (1975, 90 min.)

"Please don't feed the animals," says Dr. Graham C. Hickman, associate professor of biology. Ward Island (the CCSU campus) is home for many different kinds of animals, both lovable (raccoons and foxes) and not-so-lovable (skunks and snakes). "All are an important part of the ecology of this area," explained Dr. Hickman, "but if the animals are fed, they will tend to become more bold, and even demanding, in their attempts to get food." This could eventually lead to animals being captured and transported elsewhere for their own safety, says Hickman. For the sake of the animals, those students and faculty who study the animals, and those in the campus community that enjoy seeing the occasional fleeting glimpse of a creature making its way across campus, Hickman asks that you refrain from feeding the animals.

Delta Sigs bring smiles to children's faces

by Arnoldo Medina Jr.
President, Delta Sigma Pi

On October 24, the Iota Psi chapter of Delta Sigma Pi had an opportunity to bring "a lot" of smiles to the faces of children at Driscoll Children's Hospital. The CCSU chapter treated the children to a Halloween party, complete with costumed members in outfits ranging from colorful clowns to bearded pirates. The members provided each child with a pumpkin to decorate with non-toxic, water-based markers. The CCSU chapter of the international business fraternity visited with the children on the fifth and fourth floors of the hospital as part of its community service efforts.

This activity was the result of the combined efforts of Delta Sig's Vice President of Professional Activities Georgia Ermis and Doris Jensen, volunteer coordinator for Driscoll Hospital. The fraternity was able to acquire pumpkins for the event at a very reasonable cost, thanks to the efforts of Abdul Mahzoon-Hagheghi, manager/chef of CCSU's Food Service. This extra effort made it possible to provide pumpkins to a larger number of children.

As Ritual Chairman Anthony Opiela observed, making time for this type of event was worthwhile if only to bring some happiness to the children for the day. In addition, it serves to illustrate the Iota Psi chapter's commitment to the welfare of the community and its willingness to take part in activities that benefit the community. This type of effort can serve to give campus organizations, like Delta Sigma Pi, a renewed sense of purpose with regard to their responsibility to the community. The need is definitely there; all an organization needs to do is look for ways to fill that need.

Delta Sigma Pi is hoping to make this activity, and others like it, a permanent fixture on their calendar of events in future semesters.

Arnoldo Medina Jr., president of CCSU's Delta Sigma Pi chapter, entertains a youngster and his mother at Driscoll Children's Hospital as part of a club-sponsored activity.

National Student Nurses Association

Undergraduate nursing students have formed a CCSU chapter of the National Student Nurses Association (NSNA). With the Generic Nursing Baccalaureate Degree program still in its early stages, the formation of a CCSU chapter was only a dream until this semester, even though the national chapter was formed in 1953.

CCSU's NSNA chapter plans to offer health information and services to students including free blood pressure screening, blood sugar tests, and other health related services. NSNA's first activity was at Bayfest where they took part in blood pressure screening in conjunction with the American Red Cross. Their first on-campus activity will be free blood pressure screening Nov. 10 in GMSC, beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Officers for the CCSU chapter are: president, Steve Miller; vice-president, Scott Fauver; secretary, Shirley Lewis; treasurer, Dana Lipscomb; project director, Mary Hoch; promotions director, Cynthia Rodriguez; faculty advisor, Bunny Forgiore, RN, MSN.

FOR YOUR INFORMATION

Sharon Alexander, RN
University Nurse

We hear a lot about Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS), "The plague of the 90's." Yet, do you really have the facts straight? What was your source of AIDS information — "the grapevine?"

I recently attended an inservice for managers where a speaker mentioned concerns about persons with AIDS working in a restaurant setting. The fact is that you can't get AIDS by shaking hands, or by hugging, in restaurants, or in restrooms.

The human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, is transmitted by sexual contact, blood contamination, and mother to baby during pregnancy or during birth.

The fastest growing population of HIV infected persons are women and teenagers.

Learn more about AIDS for yourself, your children, your career... you are invited to attend a program, "AIDS 101" at Corpus Christi Hall Room 117 Wednesday, Nov. 4, presented by Janis Smolt, AIDS educator. Bring your questions. This program is scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m. and end at 3:30 p.m.

Pirates opens Thursday

Frederic (Larry Cashion) rows the Pirate Maid Ruth (Sandra Woolery) to shore in a scene from a new Broadway musical version of The Pirates of Penzance, the first production of University Theatre's '92-'93 season. Opening in Warren Theatre Nov. 5, performances continue through Sunday, Nov. 15.

Finally, if an agreement cannot be reached by the committee, an appeal can be made in writing to the President of the University. The President will render his decision and send copies to the student, the faculty member, and the Dean of the College involved. This decision shall be final in all cases of grade appeals.

Grievances of a non-academic nature follow the student disciplinary grievance procedure. A student should first present the grievance to the immediate party or administrator involved. If the student feels the matter is not satisfactorily resolved at this level, he or she may submit the grievance and a recommended solution to the next higher administrative person. The administrator at this level will review the case and render a decision to the grievant. If the student is not satisfied, he or she may submit a grievance to increasingly higher levels all the way through the level of Dean of Students.

If the student is still not satisfied, he or she may request the Provost to appoint a grievance committee to hear the complaint. The committee will consist of five persons, two of whom may be students. The committee will hear the complaint and present its findings and recommendations to the individual. Finally, the student may appeal the findings of the grievance committee to the President, who will render a final decision on the matter.

Sexual harassment complaints are handled differently than other appeals proceedings, due to the potentially sensitive nature of the complaint. Persons may seek a resolution to the matter through discussions with the alleged offender. But, before adopting this approach, persons may choose to seek advice about how best to confront an individual whose conduct is deemed offensive. Students are encouraged to consult the Student Counseling Center at any time they feel confronted by behavior they deem inappropriate. Members of the faculty and staff should direct their concerns to the Human Resources office.

If no resolution is forthcoming or if direct confrontation is deemed inappropriate, the person may report the complaint to the alleged offender's immediate superior. The supervisor will attempt to resolve the grievance while maintaining the complainant's anonymity. Whether the complainant is a faculty member, staff member or student will determine who renders final decisions on the complaint. If necessary, committees will be appointed to look into the matter and deliver recommendations to the appropriate administrator. Sanctions may include, but are not limited to, formal reprimand, probation, or dismissal from the University.

Much of the appeals information can be found in the Student Handbook; however, students should note, the Handbook is currently being revised, according to Dr. Eliot Chenuaux, dean of students. The revision is designed to reflect the organizational changes within the University made since the last printing. Copies of the old handbook are still available in the Office of Student Life, Glasscock Memorial Student Center (GMSC).

If any one has any questions about the updated policies discussed above, they may contact the Dean of Students office.

Voter survey predicts Clinton win in Nueces

by Tim Schmelter

By the time most of you read this, history will have shown how accurate the voter intention survey taken by Dr. Robert Bezdek's "Campaign Politics" class really was. Bezdek, professor of political science, and Professor of Sociology Dr. Ross L. Purdy presented the results of a survey of 608 Nueces county residents.

The respondents were asked to answer questions about their preferences in the November 3 general election. Eighty-five percent of those polled, or 493 people, expressed their intention to vote in the upcoming election. Of those voters, 41% said they would vote for Democrat Bill Clinton, 33% for Republican George Bush, and 14% for Independent candidate Ross Perot.

Thirteen percent of voters were undecided on their choice for president. Of those, 25% said they leaned toward Clinton, 20% said they preferred Bush, and 18% said they leaned toward Perot. The margin of error in the survey was plus or minus four percentage points.

complete an enrollment application. A personalized registration appointment will be made for you at that time.

Class scheduling forms will be available in the Registrar's Office beginning November 12. The Spring 1993 schedules will also be available on November 12.

Students have until December 17 to pay for classes reserved during early registration. Those courses not locked-in through payment by the deadline will be released back into the computer pool in time for the special Add/Drop day set for January 5. This special Add/Drop allows those students who early registered the opportunity to adjust their schedule before the onslaught of regular registration.

Students from Bezdek's "Campaign Politics" class conducted the survey over a two week period preceding the elections. Students then entered the data into computers for analysis. The results of the survey were announced on October 27 at a press conference held by Bezdek and Purdy.

The survey also predicted that Solomon Ortiz would defeat Jay Kimbrough in the U.S. Congressional race by a 13% margin. Nueces county voters were predicted to choose Barry Williamson over Lena Guerrero in the hotly contested battle for Texas Railroad Commissioner by a 14% margin.

According to Bezdek, the survey did not prove to be terribly surprising. "Nueces County has traditionally voted Democratic," said Bezdek at the press conference. The only surveyed race that deviated from that pattern was the Railroad Commissioner. "I wouldn't put any big money on Lena," quipped Purdy.

More interesting was the "Perot factor" in the presidential race. As expected, Perot's support was strongest among voters who classified themselves as "independent." Clinton, however, commanded a higher overall lead among independent voters, a key indicator of the eventual outcome of the election, according to Bezdek.

The figures seemed to indicate a significant Clinton lead, but Bezdek warns against taking the results as gospel. "The real problem with these surveys is turnout," explained Bezdek. Eighty-five percent of those surveyed reported they would be voting in the election, but traditional voter turnout in Nueces County has been around 60-65%. Additionally, said Bezdek, "political theory assumes a rational, informed voter, and I think that's dead wrong. Negative ads and misinformation in particular can sway independent voters."

Although the survey is complete, Drs. Bezdek and Purdy hope to enlist students to help with follow up analysis of the data. They hope to complete cross-tabulation analysis on voter intention as a function of age, income, gender, and ethnicity, as well as compare their predicted results to the actual outcomes.
