

Forest Service grant funds University's entry landscaping project

CCSU goes tropical! The Island University will experience a palm "frond-zy" this May when 123 palm trees are planted along the campus' west entrance. The Florida Sabal Palms (also known as Cabbage Palmetto) will dress the entrance to the University beginning at the University's main entry sign on Ocean Drive, continuing down the main entry boulevard, lining both sides and the median of the heavily traveled road.

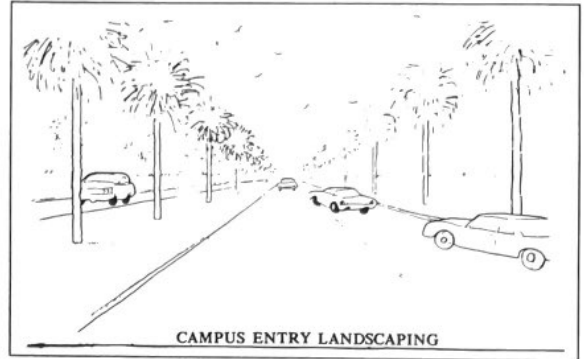

According to the technical proposal for the landscaping project, CCSU maintenance crews will plant palms with trunk lengths of 10 to 12 feet at intervals of 20 feet to create "an exciting visual rhythm" for travelers on the entrance way. The University plans to continue this formal landscape system throughout the campus "to delineate major roadways and add visual uniformity and continuity on a campus wide scale," according to the proposal.

CCSU Grounds Supervisor and landscape architect Randy Haaker said that a $11,392 grant from the Texas Forest Service of The Texas A&M University System will cover the bulk of expenses associated with the project. CCSU physical plant crews will use a University-owned backhoe to excavate and pre-mix backfill materials and the excavated clay soil will be formed into watering saucers around the base of each tree. Haaker said local small businesses will bid for the chance to provide the palms and the crane to plant them.

Florida Sabal Palms were selected, reported Haaker, due to the species' "permanence, durability, character and overall performance" in the region. "As the University grows," he stated explaining the importance of the project, "it will be increasingly important to create See "Palms," page 4.

Student Govt. candidates state positions on issues

Voting in the CCSU Student Government race will be held this week on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, January 26-28. Ballot stations are set up in the Glasscock Memorial Student Center (GMSC), University Library, Corpus Christi Hall (CCH), Center for the Arts (CA), Center for the Sciences (CS), Classroom East (CE), and the Field House (FH).

Student Government meetings are open to all who wish to observe the proceedings. A schedule of meeting dates, times and locations is printed on page 4.

A total of nine senate and alternate seats are open, in addition to the seat for Student Government President. Student Government positions open during the current election are:

Art & Humanities: two senators;
Business Admin.: three senators;
Education: one senator, two alternates;

Science & Tech.: one alternate.

The following statements are taken from the filing forms that candidates submitted to the Office of Student Life. They have been edited due to space constraints. On the forms, candidates were asked to provide background information, experience, etc., which they felt makes them an effective Student Government leader. As well, candidates were asked to state, in their own words, issues they would like to address as a representative of their college.

Student Government President Candidates:

Jim Beggs, Senior

I have been an active member in Alpha Chi, and Senior Vice-President and recruiter for Delta Sigma Pi. I am just completing my term as Vice-President of Student Government. Having been active last year, I understand how it works within our school.

Issues I would address: 1) With construction of new buildings, parking could get a lot worse. I feel Student Government, working with the Parking Appeals Committee, should look into low-cost solutions to the parking problem.

2) I have heard numerous complaints about "mix-ups" from the Office of Student Financial Assistance and don't see why they can't be solved with a little effort.

3) Last semester Student Government started a student newspaper. This semester, we should make the newspaper more autonomous and self-sustaining.

4) As CCSU continues to merge with The Texas A&M University System, I believe Student Government should insure our students' interests, making sure that what the students want is what we are fighting for.

Tim Schmelter, Graduate Student

The S.B. President acts as a liaison between the student body and the Administration. Presently, this means that communication must be expanded; Government and University policies must be harmonized; and plans for CCSU as a four-year institution must be laid. I will keep in constant contact with the students of this University in order to voice their concerns to President Furguson in an articulate, accurate fashion. Since I have a work-study job on the campus, I expect to be available to any and all who wish to discuss a campus issue.

During my undergraduate career at Rice, I served as a court justice for my dormitory, where, I gained experience interpreting the intent of the college's law, as well as the letter. This experience will prove useful as the Student Government attempts to fine-tune its Constitution.

Terry R. Williams, Junior

It is my sincere objective in pursuing the efficacious goal of securing the SBP seat. My goal is to institute requisite changes and provide vital modifications.

We need a program that uses funds from the Student Service Account for precisely that, Student Services. Our present system fails to adhere to this purported objective. Every student enrolled in at least 12 hours is required to pay $90 in Student Service fees. I hold that present programs are not producing their requisite goal.

Upon procuring the SBP's seat, I will diligently advocate programs that warrant such student service fees. I will work to assure that all funds secured will in fact be used to enhance students, and not diverted for other university obligations. Proposed programs include securing internships for graduating seniors and visiting professionals to provide needed insight for students in those respective professions. I ask for your vote.

Senators: College of Arts & Humanities Arnoldo Peña, Junior, Psych.

There are no specific issues that I wish to address at the moment, but I'm sure issues will surface as the occasion presents itself. Any and all issues presented will hopefully be consensus issues within guidelines and for the betterment of student life.

I enjoy associating with people. I served in the student council during my high school years. I've completed my two government and history courses with a GPA of 3.7.

Sandra Davis, Senior, Psych.

I would like to work on the parking problem and look into the See "Elections," page 4.

Enrollment sets records

As enrollment for the spring semester wraps up, another record is in the offing, and a campus-wide celebration is being planned.

According to student enrollment numbers released by the Office of Institutional Research, CCSU has set enrollment records for the past six consecutive semesters. The latest data available at press time indicated that another enrollment record-breaker will make the history books on Wednesday, January 27, the official census day (12th class day).

As of Tuesday morning last week, our enrollment was 4,390 students this semester or 12.1% above the final census date total for last spring. The semester credit hour enrollment was 34,880, up 12.5% above census day final totals of a year ago.

In celebration of the hard work and tireless efforts of all members of the campus community to increase enrollment, a drop-in coffee is planned for Wednesday, Jan. 27, from 9 to 11 a.m. in the atrium of the Faculty Center.

Parking Appeals Committee

by John Graham
Fall '92 PAC Co-Chair

The Parking Appeals Committee (PAC) was set up to ensure the student body a voice in the decision process regarding parking violations on campus. The committee is made up of eight to ten members who serve on the Committee on a rotating basis, under the guidance of two Committee chairs. The two chairs divide their time between hearings during the day and hearings in the evening. The other members cooperate, based on class scheduling and availability. Students interested in serving on the Committee should leave their name and phone number at the Office of Student Life at 994-2707.

This is important for several reasons. It will mean that the board will consist of varied members, allowing for a more diverse panel with whom the student may appeal. Additionally, this is one portion of our student government that is truly a panel of your peers, and therefore deserving of your protection.

The setting for the hearings is semi-formal, and hearings are open to the public. Any person not appealing a citation may sit in on the hearing process and, at the termination of the hearing, may make suggestions for improvement or comment on the procedure.

The University Police have cooperated with the PAC and have shown great interest in and consideration for its suggestions. The University Police have made the department available to answer Committee questions and the PAC in turn has offered positive suggestions which have alleviated some of the problems students faced in the past.

For the remainder of the semester, the PAC schedule will alternate between Wednesday meetings, at 7:00 p.m. in the Glasscock Memorial Student Center (GMS) Conference Room 2; and Thursday meetings, at 12:30 p.m. in Center for the Sciences (CS) 104. The schedule is as follows: Thursday, Jan. 28; Wednesday, Feb. 3; Thursday, Feb. 11; Wednesday, Feb. 17; Thursday, Feb. 25; Wednesday, Mar. 3; Thursday, Mar. 11; Wednesday, Mar. 24; Thursday, Apr. 1; Wednesday, Apr. 7; Thursday, Apr. 15; Wednesday, Apr. 21; Thursday, Apr. 29.

Tuition for the course is $990, but discount rates are available. The fee includes all course materials, including textbooks and computer software. For more information, contact MDC Director Katy Peoples at 991-1440.

Writing Center offers free tutoring

The Writing Center on campus has been expanding the number of students seen and services offered. The Center can offer help with generating topic ideas for papers; suggestions for pre-writing techniques; feedback on early drafts of works in progress; feedback on papers as to content, construction and readability; tutoring for English as a Second Language (ESL) students; and essay test taking strategies.

Students can stop by Center for the Arts (CA) Room 201, Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. to see if a tutor is available, or they can sign up on the time sheet posted on the door for half-hour sessions. If the student has a long work that needs to be read, he or she can leave the paper and sign up for a later time slot.

If you have suggestions about expanded hours, nighttime hours, or further writing-related services, the Center volunteers encourage you to visit them or drop off your suggestions in CA 107.

Basic camp gateway for ROTC late starters

Life in Army ROTC camp can begin as a junior with the help of the Army's innovative Basic Camp, says Captain Rob Pierce, assistant professor of military science.

"Some of our best cadets come to us by way of the Army ROTC Basic Camp," says Pierce. "The pressures of beginning college get the attention of a great many students," he says, "and they don't get around to making a decision on Army ROTC until they think it's too late."

But the Army thought of that, too. Since 1964, the Army has had a way for students who transfer from community colleges to enroll. This initial experience, called Basic Camp, is a six-week introduction to the Army and soldiering at Fort Knox, Kentucky. The Army pays for transportation to and from camp, and each student who completes the camp receives around $760 in pay, plus room and board. But this is no vacation.

"We ask a lot of students who attend the camp," Pierce explains, "But in my experience, they return to campus with an understanding of what the Army is and what it does, and the great majority of them enroll in ROTC for the fall semester."

Spaces available for camp are limited, says Pierce. "We are particularly interested in students majoring in business, physical science and nursing." Interested students should contact Pierce at Classroom East (CE) 201 or call 994-2472.

Basic camp cadets get rigorous training during Field Leadership Evaluation.

News accepting stories, amends schedule

University News is a campus-wide newspaper, designed to serve several audiences on campus. To get the news out about activities on campus, we are asking for your assistance. Members of the campus community are encouraged to submit articles, send in reports and provide student organization news to be printed in the paper.

The Office of Public Information (OPI) has set up a fact-gathering operation, which includes a bio sheet for each organization and a tip sheet, with a suggested format to help you submit your news. Stories written with by-lines are welcomed, but we ask that articles be written in journalistic format rather than as a letter to the editor or personal account.

The staff of University News will be glad to take black and white photographs of individuals or club activities, when possible, but you are also encouraged to submit pho-graphs of your organization's events. People in photographs should be identified (full names). A brief description of the action in the photograph should accompany all submissions.

The deadline for submitting articles is noon of the Tuesday before the paper is published. The old publication schedule has been amended to allow an issue closer to commencement. Publication dates for
